The comment is as follows: This question was asked almost two years ago and it has a single answer. It isn't getting any views, so I'm moving on. The reason I'm posting this is that I found out later that this comment was deleted by myself. I checked my flagging history and indeed I have some comments flagged as obsolete. I looked at my flagging history for a while, but didn't find the exact comment in question. However, I'm pretty sure it was me who deleted it. Now I have two questions: Can I get a refund for deleting this comment? Should I be deleting comments that were posted by others? A: Can I get a refund for deleting this comment? No. You have no rights in the Stack Overflow system. Should I be deleting comments that were posted by others? No, definitely not. If the comment wasn't posted by you, but by a diamond moderator, you can roll back the comment deletion. I was wondering what the name of the game is that you see here, in the first picture. It's a game with a solid outer ring and rolling balls, and you get points for rolling a ball into a corner. It's very similar to Flappy Bird, except it's not flappy. A: I know this game as Ship Game. Source This is a version of the well known Game of Paper, Rock, Scissors, Lizard, Spock. The
