Packers, Bears disagree about illegal contact penalty Deanna Simon 5:51 AM, Nov 1, 2012 GREEN BAY, Wis. - The Packers say they didn't commit an illegal contact penalty against the Bears during a punt return for a touchdown in the first half of Sunday's game. The Packers said on Twitter they disagreed with a roughing the punter call on the Bears return that set up the score, but the Bears say they're not budging on their side of the argument. The play happened with 3:17 left in the first half and the Bears trailing 23-16. On first down, the Bears faced third-and-11 from the Packers' 46-yard line. On the first play of the series, Bears quarterback Jay Cutler took the snap and handed off to running back Matt Forte. Forte gained 7 yards before Devin Hester, a returner, took the ball back for a touchdown. The Packers quickly argued that Forte should have kept the ball after gaining the first down. But the Bears countered that the Packers were the ones who should have kept the ball after gaining the first down. The play would have resulted in a fumble on the next play, setting up another Bears touchdown, but the Packers said that play should have been taken away as an illegal formation. "There were three violations: Illegal motion; illegal formation; illegal contact penalty," Packers coach Mike McCarthy said Tuesday. The NFL rulebook calls for the offense to keep the ball on a first down if the play has reached the 1-yard line. The play was ruled a touchdown, and the Packers eventually got a field goal. "We've come out and said that we felt that should have been a touchback," McCarthy said. "It's the rule, and it's the reason why we've come out and said that, and that's why they did it, and we don't feel
