1. Field of the Invention This invention relates to a signal processing method, a signal processing system, and a storage medium. More particularly, the invention relates to a signal processing method, a signal processing system, and a storage medium each suitable for use in voice recognition.

2. Description of the Prior Art It is well known that speech, voice, and the like are of a feature that they are time-varying. The frequency components of speech or voice change with time as do the power spectrum and total energy of the speech or voice. The time variation of frequency components of speech or voice is typically smoothed out by a filter, such as a low-pass filter. The filter is designed to filter out the higher frequency components of the power spectrum of the speech or voice and to filter out the higher frequency components of the total energy of the speech or voice, so as to suppress noise in the speech or voice, and the filtered results are used in a succeeding stage as the input speech or voice. Alternatively, there is also known an arrangement which is so arranged that the higher frequency components of the power spectrum of the speech or voice are suppressed to prevent distortion of the voice, and the total energy of the speech or voice is suppressed by applying the method of the weighted average to the amplitude component of the speech or voice and the pitch, frequency, and the like of the speech or voice are thereby detected. As a result of the analysis of the speech or voice by using such filtering and weighting means, a feature of the speech or voice can be detected, for example, the number of words in the speech or voice or the occurrence of a particular word. If the input speech or voice is filtered by the above described filtering and weighting means in the case of voice recognition, then the spectrum of the input voice or speech is flattened out. The spectrum of the input voice or speech becomes almost symmetrical about the axis of the spectrum, regardless of whether the input speech or voice is natural speech or the speech of a particular person. In view of the difficulty of discriminating the speech or voice of a person from other speech or voice, the input voice or speech may be errone
