Photoshop's powerful tools enable you to manipulate and create images that you're not limited to creating in a tightly controlled environment. Contents of the Book This book takes a close look at how to use Photoshop to create fine art from scratch and to retouch photos. From the first pages, you may be wondering whether all this work is really necessary. After all, doesn't Photoshop make it easy to create high-quality images? The answer is a qualified "yes." Photoshop does make it easy to create images. However, you can do a lot more in Photoshop than merely creating the finished image. You can also create many image-processing procedures for analyzing images and improving their quality. The basic process of creating high-quality images in Photoshop boils down to three steps: 1. Create the image. 2. Edit the image. 3. Output the image to the appropriate destination. So yes, Photoshop makes it easy to create images, but it also enables you to create many different processes that can help you improve the quality of your images. In fact, at this point, you can start to get very sophisticated with your image-processing techniques. However, you can only increase your image-processing techniques to a point, and many of the techniques that you can use to increase the quality of your images are beyond the scope of this book.

All we can do in this book is to demonstrate how to create images with Photoshop. We also discuss some of the different modifications you can do to images and how to set up your workflow. ### What's New In?

Kathleen Phillips, 48, of Harvard Borough, got the call at 5:15 a.m. Friday, April 1. Someone from her father's home had called 911 about a possible burglary. When police arrived, they found all the lights off in the house. Footsteps were heard coming down a flight of stairs. "They heard someone on the porch of the house," Chief Mark Reinnek of the Harvard Police Department said in a news release. So police entered the home and "found an intruder at the front door with an item of clothing in his hand," the release said. "He began quickly descending the stairs." As he neared the bottom, Reinnek said, police yelled for him to stop. "When the intruder turned around to confront the officers, he raised his hands and put the item he was holding in his right hand over his head," the release said. "At that moment, one of the officers discharged a Taser." Phillips, a small form of heroin known as "shooter," was arrested and charged with third-degree burglary, criminal trespass and prohibited use or possession of a firearm. He was arraigned before District Judge Jason F. Clark of Union County Court and sent to the county jail in lieu of $100,000 bail. Phillips's charges are felonies, but they are not punishable by a minimum of five years. He was not immediately available for comment, and a voicemail was left at his home. "The charges of theft of narcotics and possession of a firearm are actually misdemeanors, but because of the nature of the type of drugs, in that case it's a felony," said Lt. Darryl Teodosio, who supervises the detectives for Harvard Borough Police. "It was third-degree burglary because they heard a noise and it was someone entering the house." The intruder was said to have put on some pants and socks after being caught. Phillips had previously been in jail for violating his bail conditions. His connection to the house was probably through a friend, Teodosio said. "He was stealing stuff," he said. "What happened was the police got called, (or) the resident called.... And what happened is after he put the item under his
