I really did, so now it's time to get back to work, before we hit the Big Apple and get into the craziness of the New Year. The holiday break was great because I finally had some much-needed time to play some Magic. Now I'm back into "work mode," so things are about to get crazy. Are you ready? I'm ready. I've got some cool things lined up for you over the coming weeks. There'll be some nice previews, an interview with a young star on the rise, some long-overdue posts, some freebie content and lots of fun, and as always, the 100-card Holiday Showcase and a fresh countdown list of the greatest villains from the past five years. To get you in the festive mood, I'm including the latest Magic: The Gathering Holiday Cup winner, Chris McKenna! "First off, I just want to thank my team, they have been absolutely amazing all season. This trophy represents the hard work of all of us. Without my team, I would not be competing in Pro Tours, Grand Prix or Pro Tours. And just as much, this trophy represents every wizard who plays Magic, everyone who tries to emulate me, and everyone who works hard and follows their dreams. The people that I have mentioned and many more. I feel blessed to have the opportunity to play in these events and to share with everyone who has played Magic. I know that I have a lot of people to thank, and I do not feel worthy of this award. All I can say is that I love you and thank you all." "When people ask me, what's one thing that you want people to know about you as a pro player? It's that you can never be happy being average. It's never good enough. You have to always be striving to get better. I

But i am not sure whether android provides natively way to save the state by using preferences and this is the reason i am asking this question. I want to know the way to do that in android in the most efficient way. A: I want to know the way to do that in android in the most efficient way. As per my understanding the most efficient way is to save the state in a SharedPreferences or Serializable object and then load it as soon as you start the activity public class SaveStateClass implements Serializable { // and the other attributes that are saved in the class } public class ReceiveActivity extends Activity { @Override protected void onCreate(Bundle savedInstanceState) { super.onCreate(savedInstanceState); // Getting the bundle //It is used to store the state of the activity across restarts // The savedInstanceState is populated from this Bundle savedInstanceState = getIntent().getExtras(); // Starting new activity //In case there is no savedInstanceState bundle // we need to pass the value of // the Bundle that was created by the
