2014.Comparison of calcium- and magnesium-associated microbial abundances in the hair of healthy dogs and those with diarrhea. Calcium and magnesium are often associated with the development of diarrhea, the latter being important to the maintenance of cellular and nutritional function. Both are excreted in the dog's feces, and cause significant reductions in serum calcium in diarrheic dogs. Their functional role in the development of diarrhea was explored by comparing hair calcium- and magnesium-associated microbial abundances in 10 healthy dogs and 10 diarrheic dogs in the same household. There was significantly higher hair calcium-associated microbial abundance in the diarrheic dogs. Hair potassium-associated microbial abundance also was significantly higher in the diarrheic dogs.

These results suggest that calcium and potassium are associated with the development of diarrhea, perhaps by controlling the intestinal pH.Q: Is the term "tenant" the same as "user"? I am debating whether to use "tenant" or "user" to describe a user within a web-based application. What is the difference between a tenant and a user? Is it just a matter of semantics, or is there some functionality that is different? A: "Tenant" is the more generic term, whereas "user" is more specific. A "tenant" is an organization that has a tenancy of a server or other resource. A user, on the other hand, is a person or thing that does something within a particular set of rules. In the case of web-based applications, either term might apply, depending on which user you're talking about. In a typical commercial web application, there will be a "tenant" who owns the server and runs the application as well as users who access the application. For example, if my company sells stock trades to the public, I'd be a tenant for the application. Users would be my company's employees who access

Show that $\sqrt[3]{n}$ is irrational for any n The square root function is not continuous. But is it irrational? I can't think of any way to disprove it. A: Suppose a is a rational number, and let $b = \sqrt[3]{a}$ be its cube root. I claim that b is a rational number. To see this, observe that $(\sqrt[3]{a})^3 = a$, $\quad (\sqrt[3]{a})^3 = a$
