I opened another question for those who want the answer. Read it here. Q: How to trigger the change event in input field in javascript I want to trigger the change event in input field in javascript, I use `document.getElementById("referralCode").change()`; but that is not working A: You can use this: `document.getElementById("referralCode").onchange()`; As mentioned by others, `onchange` is the modern method to do this. It's supported in all modern browsers. `Onchange` also has the side-effect of delegating the change event to the underlying element. That's not what you want, so only use the above method if you need it. Note that it's `UIDeviceOrientation` for iPad devices and `UIDeviceOrientationTwo` for non-touch devices. 1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a semiconductor device, and particularly to a power semiconductor device having high breakdown voltage and high blocking capability. 2. Description of the Background Art Referring to FIG. 20, a cross-sectional view of a conventional power semiconductor device is shown. This device is disclosed in Japanese Patent Laying-Open No. 7-154012 (1995), and comprises an N--type substrate 101 of, for example, silicon carbide. A trench type P+-type columnar zone 102 is formed on a surface of the substrate 101. An N+-type columnar zone 103 is formed on the P+-type columnar zone 102. Upper and lower N+-type regions 104, 105 parliamentary seat of the Kings of England. Henry I had a great hall built next to the Tower of London in 1078-79 for a session of the first English Parliament, but it was destroyed by fire in 1215. Henry II had a hall built for a second Parliament, held in 1265-66. It was the third hall to serve this purpose, being destroyed by fire in 1284, while still in use. It was almost certainly part of the new Palace of Westminster, the building on the site of what is now Parliament Square, started in 1215, designed by William Longfit. The new building would have been similar to the hall in the 1265-66 session. The current building, begun in 1275, was designed by William Juste. The construction of the new Palace of Westminster continued for over another 30 years, during which time the Great Hall was in use as a venue for Parliament. The main chancel window of the building is said to show a view of the London Wall across the River Thames, from the Palace of Westminster to the Tower of London, including St Paul's Cathedral, the Temple Church, and the Palace of Westminster. The only other surviving view of the Tower, from the Palace of Westminster, is from the viewfinder window of the Tower of London Tower Bridge camera. The new building was initially used for both Parliament and other public meetings and proceedings; as the country grew, it was extended to accommodate more places for public meetings. Westminster Hall was used for a time for Royal Weddings, but the actual ceremony took place in the nearby Chapel Royal of St George (now the Chapel of the Order of the Garter). In the early 18th century, the building was

I wrote a function that finds the check digit of a number, but I get a compiler error: 'int' does not contain a definition for 'Digit' that refers to my Digit method. public int CheckDigit(int num) { String digits = GetDigits(num); int digit = Convert.ToInt32(digits.Substring(0, 1)); int least = Convert.ToInt32(digits.Substring(0, 1)); if (num % 10 == least) { int check = num / 10 - least; return check * 10 + digit; } else { int check = num / 10 + digit; return check * 10 + digit; } } Digit returns a string with a string containing the integer digits, so what can I do? A: The error is correct, you are trying to access members of integer: public int CheckDigit(int num) { // this is not correct: String digits = GetDigits(num);
