Welcome Welcome to the website of Country Music inspired Pop music of the 90's! Download our FREE samplers to listen to the best in our collection. Join us on FACEBOOK and Twitter for all the news and information. Thanks for listening! I'm a sucker for a true classic from the '70s and '80s. The classics on this list are some of the most memorable songs and albums in history. Some are identifiable, while others won't pop up until you listen to them. Some are insane, and others will make you want to hit pause and go read a book. I tried to stick to singles and full lengths, so while I won't be covering everything from the '70s and '80s (you should check out a few of those), I promise you'll find some gems on this list. Enjoy!

The Alarm - "Balding Man" The '80s were weird. The decade that spawned everything from techno to Motown, synthpop and punk. To me, the songs that topped the charts and albums that made a lasting impact on pop culture are what I adore. "Balding Man" is arguably one of the top-ten all-time big hits and is a cleverly crafted piece of garage rock. The entire era just sounded a lot better than the modern era, and that's not a knock on how things are now. "Balding Man" has a bit of the '80s charm, but it's not cheesy like so many of those songs get. If you're in the mood for something a little more upbeat and happy, check this song out.

Sly & the Family Stone - "Family Affair" I love a good cover. Family Affair is an infectious and soaring pop anthem about a young couple's excitement to get together and start a family. I haven't been able to find out when it was released, but the song is most likely from the '70s. I've seen it listed in many places as a Sly & the Family Stone song, but I've never known that for sure. Either way, the song is a fun remake, and the chorus will get stuck in your head. The Cars - "Drive" The Cars are one of my favorite bands of all time, and they've had some huge singles. "Drive," however, may not be as well-known as others on this list, but it's still another solid pop anthem
