Previous studies have shown that patients with schizophrenia are at an increased risk of suicide compared with the general population. Statins have been shown to have neuroprotective effects and to be associated with a lower risk of suicidal behavior. We investigated the impact of statin therapy on the risk of suicide attempt in a cohort of patients with schizophrenia. A total of 932 patients with schizophrenia or schizoaffective disorder were enrolled in a naturalistic study in Germany between July 2008 and June 2012 and were followed up for 12 months. Patients received their usual medication regimen. Patients were categorised into 2 groups: statin users (N = 592) and non-statin users (N = 340). We assessed whether patients
