v25.0.0.32 UpdateAt 22:50 UTC on Thursday, Aug. 10, the International Space Station departed from the handoff point of Los Angeles International Airport. After three days of transfer, the Station is now again positioned at the easternmost edge of the United States' soil, putting it approximately 41 miles over Hawaii. The space station has been at the Los Angeles handoff point for nearly a month, as the station's crew of three astronauts – NASA Flight Engineer Christina Koch, NASA Flight Engineer Andrew Morgan and Russian cosmonaut Alexey Ovchinin – began preparing for their transfer to the ISS to replace Expedition 47 Commander Alexey Ovchinin and Flight Engineer Jason R. Resnick. Over the past month, Mission Control Houston has been busy orchestrating the transfer. But prior to the handoff, Mission Control also prepared a farewell ceremony for the station's current Expedition 47. "Tomorrow, Mission Control Houston will begin final preparations for the handover from Los Angeles to Houston at 22:50 UTC," said Mission Control Houston Flight Director Gil Bowersox. "This will be the last handoff of the United States to Russia. It will take place on the day the Space Shuttle retires." To keep up to date on the day's activities and upcoming events, refer to Flight Director Ken Ham's timeline here or follow along using the social media channels. Handoff news timeline: 2:30 p.m. – With transfer of crew from L.A. to KSC completed, the ISS will remain at this location for the next three days to prepare for the arrival of the new crew.
